out in a good stiff constitutional letter for the repeal of the Missouri line root and branch and "it will run like the cholera." Where, oh! where, is John Van Buren?

LOUIS NAPOLEON.—The part played by the French Emperor in the political drama which seems likely to terminate in so serious a deneuement has been characterized throughout by the most consummate skill and sagacity. He has actonished and confounded the veteran diplomatists of the Nesselrode school by the extent of his foresight, the rapidity and certainty of is combinations, and his prompt appreciation of the eventualities of the European imbroglio, He saw from the first that its Gordian complexities could only be unravelled by the sword, and for that issue he has accordingly been long and steadily preparing. Whilst the other Powers have been trusting to the virtues of protocols and the chances of Providence, he has been quietly adding to his forces and measuring his strength for the approaching struggle.

The career of this extraordinary man may be said to be almost without a parallel in history. He has reversed the axiom applied to great minds by the Latin poet, for in adversity he was centemptible, whilst in prosperity he has displayed qualities of the highest order. Other princes have, by their courage and constancy, survived the reverses of fortune and the morti fication of defeat; but few, like him, have outlived the force of ridicule. The contrast between Philip drunk and Philip sober finds in him a striking illustration, for at one time he was the butt and laughing stock of Europe, and he is now the arbiter of its destinies.

It is a singular revolution of the wheel o chances which presents to us in the person of the same individual such extremes of fortune and such opposite characteristics. What a practical satire, too, it furnishes on the instability of institutions which have no foundation in popular affection and respect. The needs adventurer and gambler of yesterday is the autocrat of men's liberties to day-the central pivot, in fact, on which the whole political ma-binery of Europe turns.

Life of strange contradictions! how many hepes and fears, how many aspirations of enslaved hearts, are bound up with your dark and unfathomable future? Although cradled in despotism, you had a popular erigin-matured in adversity, you developed popular instincts. Will your future course confirm or belie those

This is the question that naturally suggests itself when we reflect on the opportunities for good or for evil that Providence, in its inscrutable wisdom, has thrown into the French Empeper's hands. If he be true to his recorded opin lons—if he be true even to the policy of his race he may yet wipe out the offences that he has committed against the liberties of his country by helping to burst the bonds that fetter the salaved populations of the continent.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF MOBE.—Those who seek to found conclusions unfavorable to the spirit and stability of our institutions on the riots that occasionally break out in our large cities must take a very superficial view of our politisal and social condition. Damnant quod non intelligunt. All these local and sectional disturbances usually take place in the intervals of political calm that occur between the Presidential elections. During the heat of party contests they are lost sight of in the conflicts o more important interests. They are generally got up by vain and unscrupulous individuals who seek to attain a bad pre-eminency by ap pealing to the religious or local jealousies of liferent sections of our countrymen. These ases, however, are merely sporadic, and indicate no constitutional unsoundness. In a des-potic, or even a comparatively free country, like lingland, they would be looked upon as alarming symptoms as the precursors of revolution the convulsive throes and upheavings of the enslaved and down trodden masses writhing under the iron heel of oppression. Whether their preximate causes were to be traced to the enreachments of capital upon the rights of labor, the growth of gigautic monopolies, or the sup. ion of the privilege of free discussion. heir occurrence would be regarded as equally pregnant with danger to the established order things. With us, however, the case is different. These occasional outbreaks may be said to be inevitable incidents in our political system. They are merely the abuses of that lati-tade of opinion and action which is the birth-right of every American citizen; and however troublesome and inconvenient they may some-times prove, we have the consolation of knowing that they can never assume any but a local and exceptional character. Whenever they besome dangerous to the public peace there is sufficient practical common sense and spirit in the community to render them at all times ready to apply the strong argument of force when other remedies fail.

If the philosophers and king-worshippers of Enrope, who make these riots a subject of reproach against republican institutions, were to mamine more narrowly into their origin, they would find that, instead of affording any real ground for assailing them, they only reflect back the evils that disgrace their own forms of government. In nine cases out of ten these disbances are to be traced to foreign elements imperfectly absorbed into the homogeniety of our system. They are, in truth, nothing more than the reaction of the religious and poli tical animosities engendered in European countries by that miserable policy which seeks to perpetuate despotic power by keeping up the var of sects and races. Viewed in this, their true light, they afford no cause for apprehen sion. As in the amalgamation of other autagonistic elements, all such angry ebullitions must eventually settle down.

PUFFING ONE'S SELF.—Every Sunday paper of yesterday has a puff of Solon Robinson's althy "Hot Corn" stories, all apparently written by Solon himself, and no doubt each paid for to the journals in question. This is the way the fifthy trash has been imposed on the public. Even the religious newspapers puff or pay in the same way—and some of them have the profanity to say that the book is next to the Evangelists in interest and truth.

THE LETTER-THE SCARLET LETTER-Has our respected friend, Mr. John Cochrane, the United States Surveyor, found that letter yet? We mean that identical letter which General Pierce wrote in July, 1848, or thereabouts, to the Van Buren committee of the great Park meeting that ratified his nomination and prin-ciples—that letter in which he, (the present President of the United States,) symp and concurred with the great free soil move ment of that day. The Ice in the Rivers.

ACCIDENTS TO VESSELS—SIDEING OF THE CLIPPER
BARK GRAPSSHOT.

The ice made its appearance in the North and East rivers on Saturday night and yesterday in immense fields, almost reaching from shore to shore, crowling and chaffing the piers and vessels to an extent which at times became the piers and vessels to an extent which at times became truly alarming. The bests on some of the ferries were compelled at various times during the day to lay by and watch their opportunity for an opening sufficient to war rant them in venturing across. A number of accidents occurred to vessels which were lying in exposed situa-tions, and also to ferry boats, a list of which will be found

The new elipper back Grapeshot, Capt. Parker, of New London, which was lying at anchor in the stream, off the foot of Wall street, loaded and ready for sea, bound for Melbourne, Australia, was struck about 7 o'clock yesterday morning by a small loeberg, which stove in her bows, and she immediately commenced filling. The officers of the vessel were ashore at the time; but a gentleman—Mr. Monsell—who had just taken on board some letters and files of papers, seeing the condition she was in, signalised for assistance, when the steaming Hestor, Capt Woodhull, went to her relief, and towed her into the slip next below Catherine ferry, on the Brooklyn side, where she now lies sunk in aboat twenty feet water. The Grapeshot was loaded with four, and will have to be entirely discharged before she can be raised. She is well braced with ropes from her maintopmast to the piers, which will with ropes from her maintopmant to the piers, which will keep her in an upright position. Her cargo was being taken out yesterday by lighters. She cleared at the Custom House on Friday last, and was to have gone to sea vesterday afternoon. which was lying in the East river, parted her calles yes-terday afternoon, in consequence of the pressure of ice against her, and lost both of her anchors. She was res-ened by the steaming Leviathan, and towed to a wharf. A fore-and-aft schooner, name unknown, was drived from her anchorage in the North river, opposite pier Net 1, and went schore on Bedice's Island, where she now

Gouverneur street, on Saturiay night, was struck by a large body of ice, which broke the flanges of one of her and otherwise disabled her

About six o'clock on Saturday evening the steam-beat Metropolis, belonging to the Wall street ferry, had her rudder split in two by a large cake of floating ice, and her rudder split in two by a large cake of floating ice, and was completely disabled in consequence. The next morning her comsort, the Exchange, met with a similar disaster, and both boats were withdrawn for repairs. Business was consequently suspended yeateday; but the necessary arrangements have been made to renume the trips this morning by substituting some of the spare boats which are reserved for such continguacies. The beat Montana, of the Hamilton avenue ferry, was likewise classified yesterday forenoos, leaving but one boat for the conveyence of passengers.
